

Iron woman

My iron woman is silver and blue. She has a backpack full of necessary items for an emergency. She has rocket shoes to fly in the air. She also has a blue light on her chest. She uses this light to help people know where she is. But at the same time, she doesn't use the light because she doesn't want enemies to see her. In a blink of an eye, she would set off her security alarm to alert her, that supervillains have been caught. This make the victim relieved that here is no criminal lurking around them.

Whenever she needs to, she can visualize her back story. She can remember when the supervillains took her parents away, which eventually led her to help others. As she recalls her past, one tear is falling down her face, but she wipes those tears away to continue her day saving others. Iron Woman makes sure they don't have the same situation.
