

Imagined Character

The first thing you notice is a scorching, flaming, bright, conflagration of fire that comes from their clothes. She shoots fire arrows, which come flying and aiming directly at villains. Her clothes are flaming red and when they fly their wings they will land somewhere and aim fire everywhere, as they jump.

They are willing to help their country and friends to help others, so they have money and gold and land. So they have enough of everything to give away their possessions. They are known for their generosity.
